Academic calendar features important dates, student art

FRANKLIN, Tenn. – Williamson County students and parents can keep track of important school dates and get insight into living healthier lives with Williamson Medical Center's 25th annual academic calendar.

The 2011-2012 calendar features 13 pieces of art created by students in nine public and private high schools in Williamson County. Selected artwork will be on display at the Medical Center for one year.

The calendar lists important dates for all schools in Williamson County and especially is helpful for parents who have children attending different schools, says Steve Dycus, Williamson Medical Center Marketing and Public Relations director.

"More importantly, the calendar provides health information for people of all ages and encourages them to take a more active role in their health care," he says.

Students whose artwork is featured in the calendar are Auriele Creasman, Fairview High; Leslie Crisp, Brentwood High; Chloe Hall, Brentwood High; Joy Jackson, Benton Hall; Hannah Jason, Brentwood High; Jessica Kovalchik, Independence High; Katie Lee, Page High; Yessenia Mata, Centennial High; Alexandra Pitzer, Battle Ground Academy; Chelsea Pritchett, Franklin High; Danielle Sutter, Middle College High; Tiana Trotz, Brentwood Academy; Paris Yamek, Brentwood Academy.

Nearly 60,000 calendars were distributed to schools and the community this month. Copies can be picked up at the Brentwood and Franklin chambers of commerce; the Brentwood and Williamson County public libraries; the Brentwood, Fairview and Franklin recreation centers; the CoolSprings Galleria information desk; the Martin Center; and the College Grove Community Center.
